

AN EDUCATIONAL ADVENTURE

In the Soviet Union — April 5th to April 19, 1987

with Sandra Long, Mel Ingalls and Ron Kaufman

Education is a life long adventure. We are all students and we are all teachers on life. Join Sandra, Mel and Ron on an exciting two week adventure to learn, share, teach and grow while experiencing the educational system of the USSR.

Our group will visit primary and secondary schools in Moscow and Leningrad and have the opportunity to meet the teachers and dialogue with students. One of the purposes of these meetings will be to create the foundation for ongoing communication between Soviet and American educators and students.

This trip will be unique in that it will also focus on meeting with Soviets from a variety of professions. Members of the delegation will be able to meet with counterparts to dialogue and discuss areas of mutual interest and global concerns.

In addition to official visits to schools, committees, and other areas of educational interest, we will be warmly received in unofficial meetings with private citizens and friends of the Center for Soviet-American Dialogue. In home visits, members of this delegation will have the opportunity to spend quality time in an intimate environment with artists, healers, educators, psychologists and journalists.

This special tour is available to everyone with an open heart and an open mind.

Sponsored by
The Center for Soviet-American Dialogue